Introduction: Welcome to the Family

When you first give your life to Christ, there is an incredible sense of joy and peace. But almost immediately, the questions start.

You sit in church, or you open your Bible, and you hear words you don't understand. You feel struggles you thought would disappear. You look around at other Christians who seem to have it all together, and you wonder: Am I doing this right? Is something wrong with me?

The truth is, every single believer has asked these questions. The enemy wants you to feel isolated and ashamed of your doubts. But God welcomes your questions. He is not intimidated by your uncertainty.

This short guide is an excerpt from Chapter 8 of BELONG, the first book in our 3-part series, The Discipleship Journey. We've compiled the five most common—and most intimidating—questions new believers ask, along with simple, grounded, Biblical answers.

Question 1: “What if I still sin? Did I lose my salvation?”

This is perhaps the most terrifying question for a new believer. You prayed the prayer, you felt the change, but then—a week later—you lose your temper, you fall back into an old habit, or you entertain a dark thought. Panic sets in. Did it not work? Am I no longer saved?

The Biblical Answer

Salvation is an event; sanctification (becoming more like Jesus) is a lifelong process. When you are saved, you are justified before God completely. But your daily life is still catching up to your new spiritual reality.

The Apostle John wrote to believers, saying:

“If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness.” (1 John 1:9, KJV)

Notice he wrote this to Christians. He knew they would still stumble. Your salvation is not based on your perfect performance; it is based on Christ's perfect sacrifice. When you sin, don't run from God in shame; run to Him in repentance.

Question 2: “I don’t understand the Bible when I read it. Am I not spiritual enough?”

You open the Bible expecting a clear message from God, but instead, you find confusing genealogies, strange ancient customs, and complex poetry. It can feel like reading a foreign language.

The Biblical Answer

The Bible is a library of 66 books written over thousands of years. It is deep enough for scholars to study for a lifetime, yet simple enough for a child to grasp its core message. Not understanding it immediately does not mean you lack the Holy Spirit; it just means you are a student learning a new subject.

Even the Ethiopian eunuch, a devoted man reading the scriptures, needed help. When Philip asked him if he understood what he was reading, he replied:

“How can I, except some man should guide me?” (Acts 8:31, KJV)

Action Step: Don’t start in Genesis. Start in the Gospel of John. Read a small amount each day, and ask God to show you just one truth you can apply. Join a small group or Bible study where you can ask questions.

Question 3: “Why is my life suddenly harder after becoming a Christian?”

Many people expect that coming to Jesus will fix all their problems—their finances will improve, their relationships will heal, and they will always feel happy. When the opposite happens, they feel betrayed.

The Biblical Answer

Jesus never promised an easy life; He promised a meaningful life with His presence. In fact, when you become a Christian, you often become aware of spiritual battles you previously ignored.

Jesus was very clear with His disciples:

“These things I have spoken unto you, that in me ye might have peace. In the world ye shall have tribulation: but be of good cheer; I have overcome the world.” (John 16:33, KJV)

The difficulties you face are not a sign of God's absence; they are often the very tools He uses to grow your faith and build your character.

Question 4: “What if I don’t ‘feel’ God’s presence?”

In the beginning of your faith journey, you might have experienced powerful emotions—tears, overwhelming joy, or a physical sense of peace. But eventually, those feelings fade into the routine of daily life. Does a lack of feeling mean a lack of faith?

The Biblical Answer

Faith is not an emotion; it is a conviction based on truth. God sometimes allows our feelings to subside so that our faith can grow roots in His Word rather than our shifting emotions.

The Apostle Paul reminds us:

“For we walk by faith, not by sight.” (2 Corinthians 5:7, KJV)

Your relationship with God is like a marriage. The honeymoon phase is wonderful, but true love is proven in the quiet, ordinary days of commitment. Trust His promises, not your pulse.

Question 5: “Do I have to change all my friends and stop doing everything I used to do?”

You look at your current life—your friends, your hobbies, your weekend plans—and you wonder how much of it has to go. Do you have to become a completely different, boring person?

The Biblical Answer

You don't have to force yourself to change overnight. As you grow closer to Jesus, the Holy Spirit will naturally begin to change your desires. You will find that some things you used to love no longer appeal to you, and you will develop a hunger for things that honor God.

“Therefore if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature: old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new.” (2 Corinthians 5:17, KJV)

Regarding friends: God doesn't want you to abandon the people you love. He wants you to be a light to them. However, if certain relationships constantly pull you away from your commitment to Christ, you may need to set boundaries. Seek out Christian community (like a small group) to support you, while still loving your non-believing friends.

Your Next Step: The Journey Continues

Asking these questions is proof that you are growing. You are not meant to walk this path alone.
